Join our Naya Kang Peak Climbing trip to the 2023 and 2024 Season, which was meticulously planned and flawlessly executed with high standards for food, accomodation, transportation and logistics.

Naya Kanga also recognized as Ganja-la Chuli is the most reachable high peak over the South of alpine Langtang valley. The top of the peak can be seen from above Kyangjin Gumpa. Where we spend two nights for the acclimatization. We also hike to Tsergo Ri (4984m) in one day round trip from Kyangin Gumpa before we trek to Naya Kanga base camp. Naya Kanga Peak Climbing is easy but technically demanding for mountaineering purpose, however, it does not need any kind of previous experience. Close to the Tibetan border and the west of the Ganja La pass (5,121meter) Naya Kanga peak stands at 5,846m/19175ft, covered with snow and ice.

Without a doubt, the most important reward for mountaineering in Nepal is the spectacular views of high mountains. There are plenty of Peaks over 5,000 meters can be seen in this expeditions. Specifically, Pemthang Ri, Langtang II, Langtang Lirung, Langshisa RI, Ganesh Himal, Pemt hang Kapro RI, Shisapangma and much more. The Langtang Valley and Naya Kanga Peak connect the north part of Kathmandu and the southern part of the Tibetan forest. In this two weeks trek and climb, we can explore beautiful valley of Langtang and also get an opportunity to be familiar with the local culture and custom practiced in the Langtang region of Nepal. The heartfelt welcome from local people with Tibetan Buddhist inspiration found in the monasteries of Kyangjin gumpa is a delightful experience.
